SPACE POEM

Rumble

The spectacular, deafening noise kicked into life,

The rocket was a ball of flames,

Like a bullet, the rocket flew into space.

Launching, Launching, Launching.

FLASH!

The amazing, dark, void came into view,

Space was an explosion of colour,

Like a bird, the rocket glided gracefully.

Orbiting, Orbiting, Orbiting.

KA-BOOM!

We land on the glistening, gleaming moon with a thud,

As I take every step, I bounce like a rabbit,

Every small step is like a giant leap for mankind!

Landing, Jumping, Landing.

SPLASH!

We make our way back to our beautiful, special planet,

The sea was a monsters mouth engulfing our capsule,

I was as excited as a child waiting to greet my family once more!

Landing, Landing, Landing.

SPACE POEM

Rumbling!

The rocket starts its engines,

The massive crowd was making a deafening sound,

The crowd was a sea of ants,

Like a roaring lion, the rocket shook,

Shaking, Shaking, Shaking.

Whoosh!

Aiming for Space, the shiny, polished rocket zooms into space,

The planets where orbs of colour,

Like a shooting star, I explore space,

Searching, Searching, Searching

Crunch!

My heavy space boots jump forward on to Luna,

I am an explorer,

Like an excited child, I bounce happily,

Jumping, Jumping, Jumping.

Whizz!

We made our way back to our enchanting planet,

We were an asteroid soaring through Space,

Like a diver, we splashed down into the welcoming sea,

Landing, Landing, Landing.

SPACE POEM

RUMBLE!

The inevitable final countdown was deafening,

The roar of the engines was a heart beating furiously,

Like a mighty lion, the engine roared ferociously,

Roaring, Roaring, Roaring.

FLASH!

The planets were enchanting, tremendous marbles,

The planets were giants floating ominously above,

Like a bird gliding through the air, we soared effortlessly,

Drifting, Drifting, Drifting.

SWOOSH!

As I floated through space, I saw unusual planets – I even felt lighter,

The moon was a rocky and dusty beach in the thinnest of atmospheres,

Like the Northern lights, the Milky Way gleamed,

Waving, Waving, Waving.

VROOM!

The friendly, welcoming earth was beckoning me to come home,

The capsule was an oven heating up,

The sea was as cool as ice welcoming the capsule,

Dropping, Dropping, Dropping.

SPACE POEM

BOOM!

The crystal clear, polished rocket stood in its place ready for lift off,

The rocket was a flash of light as it whizzed through the dim sky,

Taking off powerfully was like being a meteor shooting through the heavens,

Dashing, Dashing, Dashing.

WHIZZ!

The attractive, enjoyable air was all around me,

Beaming proudly, the earth was a turquoise orb,

Sparkling, the planets surrounded me like a crowd,

Crowding, Crowding, Crowding.

BANG!

I landed on the powdery, dusty moon,

Brightly, the moon was a light illuminating our path,

I dragged my feet over the desert like moon,

Dragging, Dragging, Dragging.

CRASH!

I violently pierced through Earth's atmosphere and re-entered the luminous, lustrous earth,

I was a lightning bolt rapidly zooming through the sky,

Like a basketball, I hit the ground,

Landing, landing, landing.

SPACE POEM

CRACKLE!

My frantic heart was in frenzy as the countdown began,

I was soon going to be a speck of colour in the atmosphere,

The rocket sounds like a giant awakening,

Waiting, Waiting, Waiting.

WOOSH!

The spine-chilling but enjoyable experience is beginning,

I was a shooting star gliding through space,

I was like a bullet out of a gun,

Drifting, Drifting, Drifting.

AHH!

Now the perfect, pleasantness of space,

I felt like I wanted to gaze for all eternity,

The sun was like a ruby and the earth was a brilliant emerald,

Gazing, Gazing, Gazing.

POP!

I watched on with surprise and astonishment,

I was a smiley emoji orbiting Saturn,

The asteroid belt was like a leopard waiting for its prey,

Beckoning, Beckoning, Beckoning.

WHIZZ!

With sadness yet pride I looked down at earth,

I began my ever-lasting descent,

Bye-bye, spectacular space,

Descending, Descending, Descending.

SPLASH!
